

Review Jury

Kyorugi Referee Development Program

USA TAEKWONDO

Role of the Review Jury

The Review Jury shall be an experienced, highly qualified USATKD Referee

- Typically at USATKD events, the Review Jury is an International Referee. But at the discretion of the Referee Chair and the Ring Captain, national-level referees may be assigned as Review Jury

Review Juries should not be of the same state or training affiliation as either contestant

Duties of the Review Jury

The Review Jury's primary responsibility is to ensure the accurate execution of the match. This includes:

- Completing the match paperwork in real-time
- When requested by coaches or referees, using Instant Video Replay in a timely and accurate manner
- Supervising the computer operator to ensure accuracy of time and scoreboard
- Supporting the referee to get things right!

Responsibility of the Review Jury

The decision of the Review Jury is final

It is critical that the Review Jury have a thorough understanding of the rules, interpretations, and procedures, in order to make the correct decision and see it executed correctly

The Review Jury is responsible for ensuring that the entire referee team gets things right throughout the match

IVR for Coaches

Review Jury

Instant Video Replay (IVR)

If there is an objection during the contest, a coach can make a request for an immediate review of the video replay

IVR Requirements

Each coach gets one challenge card (blue/red). They may also challenge specific issues using the referee's technical card (green)

The coach must stand up with a card within 5 seconds of the action or decision

You may only review the video of a particular action once. A coach cannot make a request after seeing the video

Challenge vs Technical Cards

Challenge Card (blue/red)

If a request made with the challenge card is accepted, it is returned to the coach and they can use it again

If a challenge card request is rejected, the referee keeps the card and the coach may not make any further requests

Technical Card (green)

The technical card is always retained by the referee. If a technical card request is accepted, the referee simply processes the request

If a technical card request is rejected, the coach's athlete will receive a Gam-jeom for Misconduct. In the last 10 seconds of any round, the Gam-jeom is given for Avoiding will result in 2 points to the opponent

What Coaches Can Appeal

Challenge Card		Technical Card
For their Own Player	For the Opponent	Technical Issues
Technical Points	Gam-jeom & points related to: 1. Falling Down 2. Crossing the Boundary Line 3. Attack After Kal-yeo 4. Attacking the Fallen Opponent	PSS Test
Punch Misidentification		Phantom Points
Invalidation of any Gam-jeom & points reinstated		Time
Restoring points scored before a Gam-jeom	Invalidation of Technical Points	Scoreboard Entry
Gam-jeom given to the wrong player	Invalidation of points following a Gam-jeom

What Coaches Cannot Appeal

- Kicks scored, or not scored, by the PSS
- Removing points scored by the PSS
- Punches scored or not scored (except for punch technical issues)
- Reversal of a previous video replay decision
- Invalidation of points gained through illegal action — unless it's one of the penalties against opponent that coach can ask for

IVR Requirements

In the following cases, a request will be rejected but the card is returned to the coach:

1. The cameras do not record due to a malfunction
2. All cameras are completely blocked by the referee or an athlete
3. If the computer operator did not start the time

This is not the case for poor video quality or action that is difficult to see. In these cases, just reject

IVR for Referees

Instant Video Replay

What Referees Can Appeal

The referee will use their own blue/red card for:

- After 8 or 10 count for a kick to the head that did not score on the PSS
- Pretending injury
- Judge requests
- Last 5 Seconds: Falling Down, Crossing the Boundary, Attack After Kal-yeo, Attacking the Fallen Opponent

The referee will use their green card for:

- Technical Issues:
 - Phantom points
 - Time management
 - Test PSS
 - Scoreboard entry

IVR Process

Instant Video Replay

Video Replay Process

As soon as the referee signals for video replay, you should display the video. It is not necessary to find the action first; let the athletes and coaches see what you are looking at as you find the action and make your decision

Accept or Reject?

There must be clear video evidence to accept. If it is unclear, reject

Be sure to check multiple camera angles

You will only review the requested action

Speed is Key

You should make your decision within 30 seconds

When you take too long, it can completely change the flow of the match, and ultimately, this can affect the outcome

Your ability to be efficient relies on three things:

1. Knowing how to use the IVR technology
2. Knowing the rules and being decisive with them
3. Practice

Video Replay Procedure

After review, you inform the referee of your decision:

Accepted – Referee returns the card, processes the request, then continues the match

Rejected – Referee pockets the card and continues the match

Accept

Reject

IVR Sheet

As soon as you complete a video review, you must properly fill out the IVR Sheet, including:

- Match number, round number, and time of action
- Player identity
- Reason for the request
- Accept or Reject
- Review Jury identity
- Explanation - be clear!
 - If the request related to a Gam-jeom, specify which Gam-jeom (e.g. Falling Down)

IVR Guidelines

Instant Video Replay

Head Kick After Counting

If there is a strong kick to the head and the referee counts to 8 or 10, but the PSS does not score, the referee will pull their own card and request IVR

You will look for any touch of the foot (ankle bone and down) to any part of the head (collar bone and up) in order to accept

If in doubt, in these cases, trust the referee

If accepted, you will signal thumbs up, and then indicate the number of points, 3 or 6

Prohibited Act Before Head Kick

If there is an IVR request for a head kick after a count, and during the video replay you see a clear prohibited act prior to the requested kick related to:

- Crossing the Boundary Line
- Falling Down
- Attack After Kal-yeo
- Attacking the Fallen Opponent

Even if the Gam-jeom was not given by the referee, you will reject the request

Technical Points

If a coach or judge requests IVR for technical points, you must check:

- Was there was a complete turn (did the body rotate)?
- Did the base points score?
 - You can't add technical points if the kick itself did not score
- Was the turning kick the one that scored?
 - If there were several kicks close together, be sure which one scored before adding technical points

Technical Points

If the coach or judge makes a request for technical points and the referee signals the wrong number, the Review Jury should award the correct number of points, and signal the amount to the referee

The Review Jury only needs to signal the number of points if clarification is required

Example

The referee signals for 2 points, but the turning kick in question was to the head

The Review Jury will signal accept and then signal for 3 points

Prohibited Act Before Technical Points

If there is an IVR request for technical points, and during the video replay you see a clear prohibited act prior to the kick which was not penalized by the referee, related to:

- Crossing the Boundary Line
- Falling Down
- Attack After Kal-yeo
- Attacking the Fallen Opponent

Even if the Gam-jeom was not given by the referee, you will reject the request

Gam-jeom to the Opponent

When there is a request from a coach to give a Gam-jeom to the opponent, you must consider the following:

- Can you clearly see the prohibited act?
- Did it occur before or after Kal-yeo?
- Was the time running?

Invalidation of Gam-jeom Requests

The coach does not need to specify which penalty or why it should be removed.

Saying “no gam-jeom” is enough

If two Gam-Jeoms are given to the contestant at the same time, coach may ask for invalidation of either or both Gam-jeoms

Invalidating Falling Down

If a Gam-jeom was given for falling down, you must consider both of the following questions:

- Whether the player fell down
- Whether the player fell down due to the opponent's prohibited act (e.g., grabbing or kicking low)

If a contestant fell down due to opponent's prohibited act, you must instruct the referee to remove the Gam-jeom for falling down and give Gam-jeom to opponent for the prohibited act (e.g., grabbing)

This is true whether the coach requests “no Gam-jeom” or “Gam-jeom given to the wrong player”

Invalidating Crossing the Line

If a Gam-jeom was given for crossing the boundary line, you must consider both of the following questions:

- Whether the player crossed the boundary line, and
- Whether the player crossed the boundary line due to opponent's prohibited act (e.g., they were pushed out)

If a contestant was pushed out, you must instruct the referee to remove the Gam-jeom for crossing the boundary line and give Gam-jeom to opponent for pushing

This is true whether the coach requests “no Gam-jeom” or “Gam-jeom given to the wrong player”

Invalidation of Points

Coaches can request invalidation of points scored by opponent after a penalty

Example

Hong grabbed and then scored 3 points

Referee gave a Gam-jeom to Hong for grabbing but did not to remove the 3 points

Chung coach may ask to invalidate the 3 points for Hong, because they were scored after the penalty

Note: this does not apply if referee did not give a penalty.

In this example, if the coach requested IVR for removing 3 points because opponent was grabbing, the request must be rejected

Last 5 Seconds

During the last 5 seconds of any round, the referee may request IVR (and related points) for:

- Falling Down
- Crossing the Boundary Line
- Attacking after Kal-yeo
- Attacking the Fallen Opponent

The referee should use the card corresponding to the contestant that may have committed the penalty

The referee should request IVR before issuing any penalties

Last 5 Seconds

You must consider the actions by both contestants in the requested action and instruct the referee to give the appropriate penalty

Examples

- Chung fell down because Hong was grabbing. You must instruct the referee to give a Gam-jeom for Hong for grabbing
- Chung crossed the boundary line because Hong pushed Chung out. You must instruct the referee to a Gam-jeom to Hong for pushing

You must also check whether time should be added, if appropriate (e.g., Chung crossed the boundary line with 0.5 seconds left. You should ask the operator to put 0.5 seconds on the clock)

Technical Issue Examples

Phantom points

- Points scored by PSS even though there was no action, due to PSS error
- Multiple points scoring off a single kick

If accepted, you must work with the PSS technician to switch out the faulty equipment

Scoreboard error

- Referee gives Gam-jeom to Chung, but operator erroneously adds the Gam-jeom to Hong
- Computer operator removes points from Chung instead of Hong

Time issue

- Computer operator forgot to start or stop the clock

PSS test

- One or both players are landing strong kicks to the body but nothing scores and no hits register

During any round, if the coach requests a PSS test and the system is working, their athlete receives a Gam-jeom for Misconduct

If a coach or the referee requests a PSS test and the PSS is not working, you must work with the PSS technician to switch out the faulty equipment

Punch Misidentification

When punch PSS is in use, the coach can request IVR for punch misidentification when the punch registered on the PSS, and:

- The judge pressed for the wrong player
- The judge pressed for technical instead of for punch
- The judge missed the 1-second window

If the punch did not register on the PSS, the coach may not request IVR for the punch

Pretending Injury

If the referee requests IVR to check for pretending injury, you must carefully assess the entire action

First, you must determine if the player is actually hurt, or if they are pretending. Taekwondo athletes can be amazing actors!

Secondly, if they are not pretending, you must decide the cause of the injury. Was there a prohibited act? Or was it accidental?

Pretending Injury Outcomes

Possible outcomes:

1. If the player was injured by a prohibited act, you will instruct the referee on which Gam-jeom to issue (e.g. Attacking Below the Waist) then signal Reject ('the player is not pretending')
2. If the player is pretending injury, you will signal Accept ('the player is pretending'). The referee will give the Gam-jeom for Misconduct, plus any other necessary Gam-jeom (e.g. Falling Down)
3. If the player was injured due to an exchange where no prohibited acts occurred (e.g. a knee clash), you will instruct the referee to continue the match with no Gam-jeom issued for Pretending Injury, and signal Reject

Two Requests

A coach can request 2 actions that occur within 5 seconds, even if they are not connected, if they are the following:

- Adding or removing technical points / removing a Gam-jeom +
- Gam-jeom for the opponent, limited to 4 Gam-jeom cases:
 - Crossing the boundary line
 - Falling down
 - Attack after Kal-yeo
 - Attacking the fallen opponent

Two Request Procedure

If both requests are accepted, you will signal Accept and the referee will process each request

If one is accepted and one rejected, you will first instruct the referee. You will signal Accept for the first request (but the referee will not return the coach's card) and the referee will process the request. Then you will signal Reject for the second request. The referee will pocket the coach's card, signal Reject, and continue the match

One Invalid Request

If the coach makes two requests, but one is invalid (e.g. a head kick), follow the same procedure as if one is accepted and one rejected, or both rejected

You only need to show the video for the valid request

Multiple Requests

If both coaches stand at the same time, the referee will take both cards, and you will review both requests together

If the referee only sees one of the coaches, you should instruct them to take the second card before proceeding with the video review

Multiple Requests Procedure

If both requests are accepted, you will process one request at a time, in the order that the actions occurred. For example, if both coaches requested the invalidation of a Gam-jeom:

- Point to Chung and signal Accept. Referee signals Accept, returns the coach's card, then removes the Gam-jeom. Then you will point to Hong and signal Accept. Referee signals Accept, returns the coach's card, removes the Gam-jeom, then resumes the match

If one is accepted and one rejected, process the rejected request first, then the accepted request. For example:

- Point to Chung and signal Reject. Referee pockets the card and signals Reject. Then you will point to Hong and signal Accept. Referee signals Accept, returns the coach's card, removes the Gam-jeom, then resumes the match

Video Can Be Reviewed Only Once, Except...

Once a video has been reviewed, it cannot be reviewed again, except in the following case:

There is clear Falling Down or Crossing the Boundary Line and the referee fails to give the Gam-jeom. One coach requests video review for a Gam-jeom to the opponent. It is only then that the other coach can request 'Gam-jeom given to the wrong player'

Second Review Examples

Example

Hong falls down. No Gam-jeom is given. Chung coach requests IVR and asks for Hong to receive a Gam-jeom for Falling Down

You can only look at what is requested. Hong fell down, so you Accept

Hong coach requests IVR and says “Gam-jeom given to the wrong player”

On the video, you see that Hong fell down because of Chung’s grabbing. You Accept

Example

Chung crosses the boundary line. No Gam-jeom is given. Hong coach requests IVR and asks for Chung to receive a Gam-jeom for Crossing the Boundary Line

You can only look at what is requested. Chung crossed the line, so you Accept

Chung coach requests IVR and says, “Gam-jeom given to the wrong player”

On the video, you see that Chung crossed because of Hong’s pushing. You Accept

Eliminate Gam-jeom for Point Gap

When an IVR decision would cause a point gap before an already-issued Gam-jeom, the referee should remove the Gam-jeom to trigger the point gap

Example

- Score is 0-12
- Hong does a head kick (no score) and falls (0-12). Referee performs a standing 8-count on Chung
- Referee gives Hong Gam-jeom for falling (1-12)
- Referee requests IVR for the head kick, which is accepted (1-15)
 - Since the head kick happened before the falling, the score would have been 0-15 before the fall
 - Therefore, the Review Jury should instruct the referee to remove falling Gam-jeom from Hong, which will trigger the point gap (0-15)

Getting Things Right

If PSS error (for example, a delay in points showing on the monitor) causes a coach to believe there were points scored after a prohibited act, you should reject but return the card

If computer operator error (for example, the referee signals Kye-sok but the operator doesn't start the time) causes confusion that results in the review being rejected, you should reject but return the card

Review Jury Intervention

There are 2 special cases where the Referee Chair or the Competition Supervisory Board may intervene for an IVR decision

IVR Intervention

Pretending Injury

If the Referee has requested IVR for Pretending Injury, and the medic declares that the player cannot continue, the Review Jury must call the Referee Chair before declaring the outcome

The final decision is made by the Referee Chair, in consultation with the CSB if necessary

Difficult Decisions

If there is a video replay in the last 10 seconds of any round, which will determine the outcome of the match, and the Review Jury is unable to make a clear decision, the Review Jury may call the Referee Chair before declaring the outcome

The final decision is made by the Referee Chair, in consultation with the CSB if necessary

Final Decision

Remember, the decision of the Review Jury is final. It is very important to get things right!
